The Newsletter:

THE foreign-coin cataloguer and coin photographer on Harmer, Rooke Numismatists' staff is a 46-year-old Hungarian-born gentleman named Louis Karvay who smiles easily and means it when he says, "I'm very happy here."

He began collecting and studying coins and medals in Budapest after World War II and became particularly strong in his knowledge of the talers and kreutzers of the Holy Roman Empire and Germany.

He was graduated from college in 1939 and worked as a journalist and photographer, freelancing for theater and film magazines until drafted into the army in 1942. He served in the Office of the Defense Ministry—Hungary's Pentagon. Released from service in 1945, Mr. Karvay attended Law School at the University of Peter Pazmany in Budapest for two and a half years.

When he was not permitted to continue his law studies and could not get office work, he became a truck driver. He kept up his interest in and collecting of coins. The coin business there, incidentally, is entirely under state control.

After the Hungarian Revolution of 1956, Mr. Karvay and his wife came to the United States, aided by the International Rescue Committee, and lived in Pittsburgh five years. He had to work first as a laborer, then joined a photographic studio and became a commercial photographer. His daughter, Adrienne, now 12, was born in Pittsburgh.

"Seven years ago," Mr. Karvay relates, "we came to New York. I was a freelance photographer and found work as a private chauffeur for the Turkish ambassador to the U.N."

The ambassador was sorry to lose him after two and a half years when Mr. Karvay moved to New Jersey. There in the town of Wayne he combined in one job his photographic talent and chauffeuring for Chemway Corp., a cosmetic firm. Its president, a nobleman who lived on 72nd Street in Manhattan, was 17th in line for the long-vacant throne of Spain.

In his last stint behind the driving wheel, Mr. Karvay worked for Richard Sachs of Sachs Quality Stores, a furniture chain.

"I read in a newspaper of a company that was looking for a cataloguer with a knowledge of crowns and other foreign coins. So I took a chance, and now I am here, and happy."

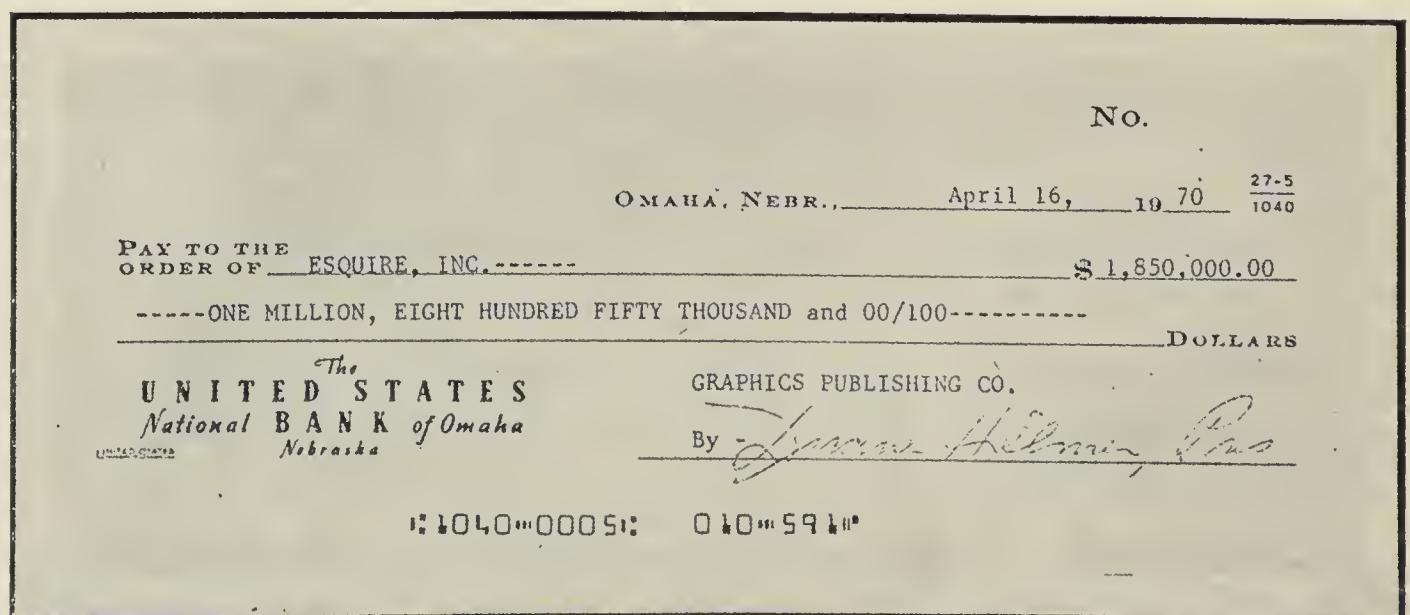

Mr. Karvay's aging parents remain in Budapest and he has been back twice to visit them. ("The atmosphere is much better. There has been a big change.") In fact, he was there in August, 1968, when the Russians invaded Czechoslovakia. The borders were closed for three days and they couldn't leave Hungary, not even to fly to Vienna.

Mr. Karvay has only one "big, big sorry" — that he wasn't younger when he came to this country he likes so much. He thinks it is the best place in the world to live. His address — Sunnyside — seems most appropriate.

SUTLER TOKENS OF THE CIVIL WAR

Sutlers were the forerunners of the Post Exchange in the lives of soldiers on campaign. They supplied the fighting men with the luxuries of life, such as tobacco, writing supplies, beverages, etc., and issued tokens because of the scarcity of small change, soldiers being paid usually in gold or notes of higher denominations; and also, as a receipt to the soldier, for money due him after his pay was given to the sutler for unpaid bills. This practice was allowed in the army during the Civil War. All are very fine to extra fine and in brass unless otherwise specified.
